Privacy Notice

The Government of Canada and the Federal Court of Appeal are committed to respecting the privacy of visitors to this Web site. This notice summarizes privacy practices for the Federal Court of Appeal's online activities.

The Federal Court of Appeal is committed to respecting the privacy of visitors to this Web site:

- The Web site does not automatically gather any specific personal information from you, such as your name, phone number, or e-mail address. This information is only obtained if you supply it voluntarily, usually through contacting us by e-mail or registering in a secure portion of the site.
- The Web site may employ software programs to monitor network traffic to identify unauthorized attempts to upload or change information, or otherwise cause damage. Such software receives and records the Internet Protocol (IP) address of the computer that has connected with our Web site, the date and time of the visit and the pages visited. We make no attempt to link these addresses with the identity of individuals visiting our site unless an attempt to damage the site or an improper use of electronic networks has been detected in association with an IP address.
- The Web site does not normally use "cookies" to track how visitors use its Web site or to identify sites previously visited. The system will notify you before any cookies are used so that you may refuse them. (Note: A "cookie" is a file that may be placed on your hard drive without your knowledge by a Web site to allow it to monitor your use of the site.)
- Visitor information is used solely in order to respond to your request or to ensure the security of this system. The information you provide will be shared with a government department / organization only if your inquiry relates to that entity. We do not use the information to establish individual profiles, nor do we disclose this information to anyone outside the federal government.

Questions or comments regarding this policy may be directed to: reception@cas-satj.gc.ca

Communicating with the Federal Court of Appeal

If you choose to send the Federal Court of Appeal an email or complete a feedback form online, your personal information is used by the Federal Court of Appeal in order to respond to your inquiry. The information you provide will only be shared with another government institution if your inquiry relates to that institution. The Federal Court of Appeal does not use the information to create individual profiles nor does it disclose the information to anyone other than to those in the federal government who need to provide you with a response.

Emails and other electronic methods used to communicate with the Government of Canada are not secure unless it is specifically stated on a Web page. Therefore, it is recommended that you do not send sensitive personal information, such as your Social Insurance Number or your date of birth, through non-secure electronic means.

Copyright / Permission to Reproduce

The material on this Website was produced and/or compiled by the Federal Court of Appeal. The purpose of the Federal Court of Appeal's Website is to deliver information and services to users that are relevant to its mandate. You may use and reproduce the material as set out below:

Non-Commercial Reproduction
